BRITISH SANCTIONS POLICY DENOUNCED AS "GREAT BETRAYAL"

SOMETHING BIG IN THE WIND

HUGE OIL ORDERS BY SOUTH-WEST

SPECULATION RIFE IN CANTON

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, To-day.

Rumours that the Kwangsi and Kwangtung Governments have entered into huge deals with a prominent Hong Kong oil firm for the supply of petrol and lubricating oils are giving rise to considerable interested comment in official and non-official circles here.

Speculation is rife as to the intended purposes of the enormous stocks which are reported to have been ordered, and it is recognised that if military action is contemplated, then the prior acquisition of large stocks of the necessary spirit and lubricating oils is an essential factor.

Confirmation of the figures mentioned is difficult to obtain, but the reports state that the order placed by the Kwangsi Government includes the provision of some 30,000 units of 10 U.S. gallons a unit of petrol; 700 tons of Solar oil, a special grade of fuel oil; and 30,000 U.S. gallons of lubricating oil. Some of this material is alleged to have already been shipped to Wuchow.

The Canton Government's reported contract is said to cover the provision of no less than 45,000 units of 10 U.S. gallons each of special aviation spirit.

The orders are reported to have been placed with a British oil firm in Hong Kong, though it is expected, in the case of the order for the Kwangtung Government, that a prominent U.S. oil firm will also participate.

It is also reported that the tanker Vermord will probably be used to convey the spirit to Canton.

LOCAL ENQUIRIES

Hon. Mr. W. H. Bell, General Manager of the Asiatic Petroleum Co. (South China), Ltd., stated that there were possibilities of one of the contracts eventuating, but the other "was news to him." He would not give any indication as to which was which.

Mr. F. H. Tyson, Attorney of the Standard-Vacuum Oil Co., stated that he knew nothing of the reported contracts. Reports like that were "always coming through."

S.-W. Authorities On Defensive

NANKING TROOPS CLOSE TO BORDER

Canton, To-day. — Having called off their anti-Japanese expedition, the South-west military authorities are now on the defensive. Behind a smoke-screen of peace, Nanking troops in Hunan are marching down close to the Kwangtung and Kwangsi borders.

Generals Li Chung-jen, Chan Chi-tang and Pai Hsueh-hsi again reminded General Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nanking Government, that their recent troop movements were directed against Japan and not against General Chiang. They demanded to know why the Nanking troops continued their advance to the south.

The public here fear that a civil war is again approaching. In any event, Kwangtung and Kwangsi are in a precarious situation. There are about 300,000 Nanking troops scattered about in Hunan, Kwangsi and Fukien. In addition about 200 bombers have been located in these three provinces.

Public opinion is against civil war. Whoever side starts internal strife will be condemned by the people, is the opinion of competent political observers. — From Our Own Correspondent.

During the foreign affairs debate in the House of Commons yesterday the Prime Minister stated that the policy announced by Mr. Anthony Eden, left, Foreign Secretary, had the unanimous support of the Cabinet, while Mr. D. Lloyd George, right, made a vigorous criticism of the British Government's foreign policy.

LONDON PRESS COMMENT

COMPETENT LEADERSHIP REQUIRED

LONDON, TO-DAY.

COMMENTING ON THE SANCTIONS DEBATE THE TIMES SAYS THAT PUBLIC OPINION WILL RIGHTLY DEMAND FROM THE GOVERNMENT ENERGETIC AND COMPETENT LEADERSHIP TO MAINTAIN THE PEACE INITIATIVE AND TO RESIST THE CONSEQUENCES OF THE PRESENT CHECK TO THE LEAGUE. THE DEBATE LEAVES THE MINISTERS WITH AN INCREASED RESPONSIBILITY FOR A CONSTRUCTIVE FOREIGN POLICY.

The Morning Post says that by their courageous decision to abandon the policy of sanctions the Government has regained the initiative and has gone far towards restoring the prestige of Britain, after her abortive attempts to make the League workable.

The Daily Telegraph says that Mr. Eden was foremost himself in admitting humiliation at the failure of the League, but the moral he draws is that of most of a bad debt written off, and we must turn to work in rebuilding. Mr. Greenwood, in holding that the lesson of the past eight months was that the League should not be emasculated but strengthened, reached to the bedrock of truth.

"GROVELLING SUBMISSION"

The News Chronicle calls the attitude of Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Eden "groveling submission," and says that nothing in the facts seems even to explain it.

The Daily Herald says that the words of the Minister for League Affairs, "We shan't shrink," have been converted into "We shall advise everybody to shrink." There is worse than a surrender to Italy to come unless the Ministers go swiftly forward to realise that the country does not share their desire to betray the League and dishonour Britain's name.

The Daily Mail expresses the opinion that the League will disappear in odium and obloquy. — Reuter.

BRITISH POLICY UPHELD

Obligations To Be Carried Out

"WE ARE QUITTING NOWHERE"

London, To-day.

The Colonial Secretary, Mr. W. B. A. Ormsby-Gore, in a speech at the Colonial Service dinner yesterday, declared: "British rule and administration must be asserted and maintained in Palestine, and there must be no doubt that we intend to carry out our obligations to all races and religions in that country, with both honour and justice."

Mr. Ormsby-Gore also denounced the report that Britain was about to quit Malta, and declared: "We are quitting nowhere and Malta is and will remain a British possession, and an all-important naval fortress to our imperial interests in the Mediterranean." — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

Canada's Support Approval In Germany Big Business In France Satisfied

Ottawa, To-day.

The Government will support the cessation of sanctions, announced the Prime Minister, Mr. Mackenzie King, in the House of Commons yesterday.

Berlin: The press highly approves of the British Government's attitude, as set out by Mr. Eden, who is praised as master of the situation.

FRENCH REACTION

Paris: Although there is no official comment on Britain's dropping of sanctions observers express the opinion that the Socialist Government feels disappointed morally, but is secretly relieved that Mr. Eden has rescued it from a dilemma. Big business and finance generally express satisfaction.

DE VALERA'S ATTITUDE

Dublin: Mr. de Valera, speaking in the Dail yesterday, said that sanctions had failed and must go. The League no longer commanded the confidence of the people of the world. — Reuter.

ligions in that country, with both honour and justice."

Mr. Ormsby-Gore also denounced the report that Britain was about to quit Malta, and declared: "We are quitting nowhere and Malta is and will remain a British possession, and an all-important naval fortress to our imperial interests in the Mediterranean." — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

LABOUR'S SCATHING ATTACK ON "POLITICAL TREACHERY"

CHANGE IN ATTITUDE ATTRIBUTED TO RETURN OF SIR S. HOARE

"EDEN GOING TO GENEVA TO SMASH LEAGUE"

"TRUCKLING TO A DICTATOR"

London, To-day.

Opening the sanctions debate in the House of Commons yesterday the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, recited the many occasions on which the Government took the lead at Geneva, and said they proposed to do so again. Answering the question of what the League should do, he said: "We have to admit that the purpose for which sanctions have been imposed has not been realised," and added: "The Government, after mature consideration on the advice which I, as Foreign Secretary, thought it my duty to give, have come to the conclusion that there is no longer any utility in continuing sanctions as a means of pressure against Italy." Mr. Eden's announcement was followed by loud cries from the Opposition of "Shame" and "Resign."

Mr. Eden's speech was interrupted for 10 minutes as the result of an altercation between Labourite back-benchers and a few Conservatives who overflowed into the Labour benches.

Mr. Eden continued by saying that last December exchanges of views were held between Britain and certain Mediterranean Powers, as a result of which certain reciprocal assurances were exchanged under Article XVI of the Covenant, whereby Britain would assist them in the event of attack.

It was the Government's view, that these assurances should not end with the raising of sanctions but should continue to cover the period of uncertainty necessarily following the termination of sanctions. However, the Government regarded any such eventuality as the assurance covered not only as hypothetical, but improbable. Moreover, in the light of the experience of recent months the Government was determined that "it is necessary that we should maintain permanently in the Mediterranean a defensive position stronger than that which existed before the dispute." Arrangements would be made to carry out the declaration that was another problem which dominated everything and had been urgently considered.

Mr. Eden added that the Government felt justified in looking for an early reply from the German Government, which they trusted would enable progress to be made with the negotiations which it was their first object to see successfully realised.

The Government believed that such consideration could only be given when the problems in connection with the imposition of sanctions had been liquidated. The Government was determined that the League should continue. The fact that the League had tried and failed was a reason for making them determined so to organise the League that it might receive the best chance of success hereafter.

The Government did not expect that at this session of the Assembly the other nations would be ready to deal with this problem. The Government thought it would be wiser to leave it till the Assembly in September.

They were already actively engaged on the matter. They were already in touch with the Dominion Governments respecting their intention to make the most constructive and timely contribution

CONSTERNATION AT GENEVA

Diminution Of British Responsibilities?

Geneva, To-day. — The British Government's sanctions decision has caused consternation in League circles. It is feared that British prestige will suffer a very severe blow. The anxiety is intensified by the fear that it portends a policy of reform of the Covenant, especially a diminution of British responsibilities under Article XVI. — Reuter.

in their power at the Assembly. He was convinced that the world could succeed in reorganising itself on a peace basis if it would. He gave a definite assurance that the Government would strive to restore to the League its full authority after this setback.

Scathing Labour Criticism

GOVERNMENT'S ATTITUDE "DESPICABLE"

The Rt. Hon. A. Greenwood (Lab. Wakefield), moving the reduction of the Foreign Office estimates amid loud Opposition cheers, declared that Mr. Eden's speech was most deplorable. It meant truckling to a dictator. Millions of people would hear it with shame and consternation.

The Government's foreign policy of the last five years was disastrous. Its present attitude was despicable and was the biggest act of political treachery in the history of the country. He attributed the astonishing and sudden conversion of the Government to the return of Sir Samuel Hoare, which was an insult to the millions who had denounced the Hoare-Laval proposals.

Mr. Greenwood interpreted Mr. Neville Chamberlain's recent speech to mean that the Government's policy included the limitation of the powers of the League and the reversion to regional pacts. He concluded by calling upon the Government to resign and make way for those prepared to put their principles to the test.

Lloyd George's Outburst

Mr. D. Lloyd George (Ind. L. Caernarvon), for the Liberal Opposition, said that if the Government was going to Geneva to admit that they were beaten and that the League had failed and they could do nothing more, it would be an end to the authority of the League. The ranks of the League were not broken, but Mr. Eden was going to Geneva to break them and smash the League.

Mr. Eden said that the new French Government had told him that they were not prepared to take the initiative in raising sanctions. The French Government had never given him the least indication that they desired to maintain the present sanctions or would support the imposition of further sanctions.

Premier On European Situation

LABOUR LEADER TO MOVE VOTE OF CENSURE

The Prime Minister, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, amid Government cheers, declared that when the League meets in the autumn it must consider seriously the whole question of collective security, which in the Government's view had failed. The forces of the League at any time must be on such a footing as to ensure certain and immediate superiority against aggressors. The experiences of the past months had conclusively proved to the Government that

Wong Ki-leung Leaves For Canton

WIFE'S ILLNESS RESPONSIBLE FOR HIS RETURN

Wong Ki-leung (Wong Wing), one of the two All-China World Olympic football goalkeepers, returned to the Colony this morning from Sumatra and left immediately for Canton.

It is understood that Wong Wing was urgently recalled from the tour because his wife was seriously ill, but it is now revealed that Mrs. Wong had recovered before it was possible to prevent Wong Wing from sailing for Hong Kong.

Wong has seriously injured his back as a result of one of the soccer games in Java, and it is now very doubtful whether he will catch the Conte Verde, on her return trip to Europe, carrying with her the rest of China's complement for the Berlin Games.

NO BROADCAST OF FIGHT

Enquiries from the Hong Kong Broadcasting Studio (Z.B.W.) this morning elicited the information that no effort is being made to relay the broadcast of the Louis-Schmeling fight. It was stated that the difficulty lay in the fact that no arrangements have been made with the American broadcasting stations to pick up anything they may be broadcasting.

Smartness In Flowers Blossoms On Shoes!

Do not be surprised if you see flowers decking even the shoes this summer. According to Irene Hayes, famous florist who has originated many flower fashions, if there are no flowers on your shoes, it will be only because they are impractical there-for they will be seen everywhere else—in button-holes, hats, belts and hairs.

EIGHT RULES Man Tells Women How To Dress

According to Victor Stiebel, whose opinions count a tremendous lot in fashion-setting circles, there are eight rules to abide by if one is to be well-dressed. Here they are:

1. The design must be simple.
2. Always choose shades which suit your own natural coloring.
3. Choose materials carefully and do not buy cheap imitations.
4. Accessories must be solidly good.
5. Learn to wear your clothes well.
6. Do not mix materials as you will kill both of them.
7. Make-up and hairdressing are more important than your clothes.
8. Wear the best corsets you can afford.

TRIM BLACK FROCKS

White pique designed into cockades, fanciful birds, stars, flowers and animals adds an amusing contrast to the ever popular black frocks. The same ideas treated in gold, silver or previous stones for clips, buttons or brooches are worn in the evening or afternoon.

Miss Hayes like to do things this year with big clumps of freesia in yellow, lavender and white. Besides arranging fresh flowers for hats and hair, she is also making up a line of bracelets in which the bright-colored flowers look like precious stones.

"One of the newest flowers this year is the African chincherie, paper-white with a black centre," says Miss Hayes.

New Orchids

"There are all sorts of new orchids, too, all wonderful range of colour and all varieties of shapes, even stars. Colour is the season's flower note."

Dorothea Wells, who this year has persuaded even brides to wear the great colourful amaryllis, suggests a single vermilion flower of this sort sensationally placed on blue, gray or turquoise costume. For a maiden aunt or grandmother who like sweet-smelling bouquets, Mrs. Wells makes a corsage of lilies of the valley with grape hyacinths or Queen Anne's lace. She has also done charming sophisticated things with English primroses and coppery French amaryllis to wear with the tailored suit, especially if it is brown or tan. Yellow marguerites or orange poppies make other tailored bouquets of great charm. Mrs. Wells has also combined gardenias with grape hyacinths, freesia or mignonne to give a new zest to an old favourite.

KNITTING NEEDLES

Wooden knitting needles of all sizes, and especially the thick ones used for loosely knitted bed-jackets, are not always sufficient-ly well polished to allow the wool to slip freely along them. They may be much improved if they are well rubbed with furniture cream and given a final polish with a clean, dry cloth. Celluloid needles sometimes become slightly bent with use. They should be laid in hot water until they are pliable, then gently straightened and laid in cold water until they have stiffened again.

Regular Care Of Feet

"LIMP" CRINOLINES

Easy Solution Found

Crinoline hat brims must look stiff and crisp if they are to be really dainty.

A good way of renovating them when they become limp (as they invariably do!) is to dampen the brim with a sugar solution, made by dissolving ordinary loaf-sugar in hot water.

When the brim has been made damp by a cloth dipped in the solution the cloth should be wrung out, placed over the brim and pressed with a warm iron until both it, and the brim are dry.

THE DUCHESS SETS NEW FASHION

Ostrich Feathers Favoured

Word from London reports that the Duchess of Kent, at her first public appearance since King Edward ascended the throne, has all London humming with tales of her new headdress—proving that she is still as much the fashion arbiter as the King himself. Beauty salons are preparing for elaborate hairdresses and rows of sleek curls rolled high, and milliners are mulling over their supply of ostrich feathers. For the Duchess of Kent follows, the King in his liking for ostrich feathers. Over a brand-new coiffure, arranged with two rows of curls brushed upward off her ears, and four rows of high curls in back, she wore an oval pillbox hat covered with black ostrich feathers which swirled gently down over her back curls. The hat was perched well down over the right eye curl.

LATEST COIFFURES REFRESHING

Right But Easy To Manage

Long-haired girls, make the coiffure experts work far harder than do the rest of us who like ours fixed in snug little curls at the back of our heads. For all that, the fact remains that some girls like there's long, and most of them have had to take a firm stand against almost everybody's advice in getting it that way.

After seasons of curls, intricate waves and ringlets, the new plain coiffures are as refreshing as spring air. With an eye toward summer, with most women like to simplify beauty routines, smart hairdressers are presenting styles that will be fashion right, yet easy to manage.

For instance, if you have long, thick hair, you can forget entirely about finger waves and marcel irons. Simply comb your hair backward from your face part the sides, back and top into sixteen tiny sections, make little braids of each section, then twist the braids into sixteen neat coils.

Pin the coils flat against your head, allowing them to overlap, so streaks of bare scalp won't show through. Incidentally, for evening, you can stick jewelled stars or crescents in the center of three or four of the coils.

Making The Most Of A Holiday.

How you enjoy a holiday depends largely upon the condition of your digestive apparatus. If you are constipated, liverish, easily upset by change of air, of food, or environment, you will feel sluggish, sleepy and miserable, instead of enjoying, and benefiting to the full by your vacation.

To be sure of getting the best out of a holiday take a vial of Pinkettes in your bag. Either on sea or land Pinkettes are the perfect laxative and liver regulator for both sexes. They help you avoid sea sickness and digestive upsets by preventing, or correcting, constipation, liverishness, bilious headaches, and whilst sure in result, they act as gently as nature. SHORTS FOR SPORTS

Girls Warned By Their A.A.A.

Shorts for women athletes must not be too short—in other words, they must reach "half way down the thigh."

Sleeves of track outfits are to be "not less than an inch and a half in length."

Notices calling attention to these rules have been sent out to club secretaries at Home by the Women's Amateur Athletic Association.

Like Chorus Girls

An official of the association said:—

"Girls are now buying and making their new track outfits, and our rule is so ambiguous that it can be misinterpreted. But it is the best way of putting it."

"If we said that shorts should be not less than four inches—or any other measurement—in length, they would be quite long on small girls, but dreadfully short on the tall ones."

"Besides, it would be impossible to go round all the meeting with a tape-measure. Much better to keep the rule as it is, and trust to competitors' good taste not to break it."

"We want English women athletes to appear smart and businesslike without looking like revue chorus girls."

ARE YOU PLUMP IN PATCHES?

Localised Treatment Best Remedy

There are many women who would have a lovely slender figure if only they were not "plump in patches."

Perhaps their ankles are too fat, or their arms, or their waist line is not as slim as it might be.

Dieting is useless for this kind of trouble because it simply makes you thin all over, and while sensible dieting, advised by a medical man, can do you nothing but good, semi-starvation, prescribed by yourself, will only succeed in ill-health, frayed nerves and haggard looks.

Still, we must not forget the plump patches which cannot be disguised, especially when bathing.

Localised application of a suitable preparation is sometimes the best remedy. A reducing jelly is a good thing to use, and among other things, there are some marvellous new lotions which are very easy to apply, and which certainly work wonders.

But you must use any reducing preparation regularly every day, and then in a fortnight or three weeks you should see a definite improvement.

EARLY BEAUTY LESSONS

Teaching The Girls While Young

If your small daughter is taught the elements of beauty now she will acquire basic training invaluable later. This does not mean that on her fifth birthday she should be presented with a dressing table over-flowing with sophisticated cosmetics. But she can learn, just as casually as she learns to wash her face, not only the fundamental routines but many of the beauty precautions that prevent blemishes from appearing.

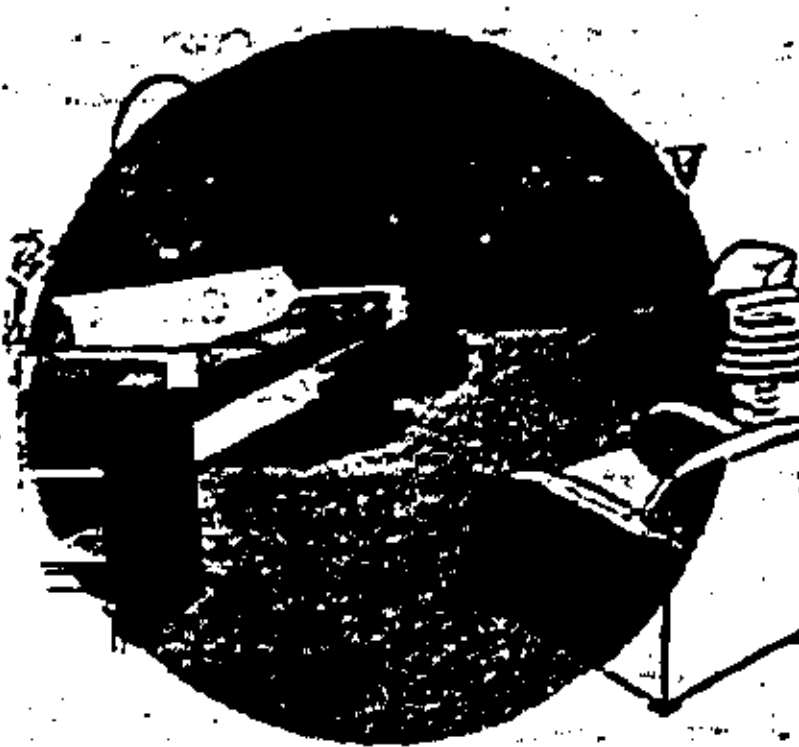

A thorough brushing of the hair each day is simple, yet the most important method of maintaining the natural glossiness and vigorous resiliency of the hair. There is really no good reason why Little Darling should not brush her own hair instead of having mother do it.

Mother will have to guard against excessive sunburn at the beach. Young, tender skins are very susceptible to the dangerous actinic rays that harden the skin and produce blemishes.

TO KEEP SILVER

To prevent silver from tarnishing when it is going to be stored for a while, rub each piece with olive oil and wrap it separately in strips of old table linen. When later required for use, it needs only washing in hot water.

VICAR TO PAY $525 DAMAGES

Slander On Former Churchwarden

STAY OF EXECUTION GRANTED

Damages amounting to $525 were awarded in the King's Bench Division last month against the Rev. Ivone Kirkpatrick Jones, vicar of Boldre, Lymington, Hampshire. An application for a stay of execution pending consideration of an appeal was granted on terms.

The hearing lasted six days. The action was one in which Mr. Frederick James Figgins, builder, of Pilley, near Lymington, a former churchwarden, claimed damages for slander. He alleged that the vicar had used words imputing that he was a rogue and a thief who had stolen money from the church restoration box. The defence was a plea of justification and privilege.

Jury's Findings
The jury found that: The words spoken by Mr. Jones to Col. Hogg, the Vicar's warden, were not actuated by malice. The words were not true in substance and in fact. They awarded no damages under that head.

The words spoken to Miss Swaby, a member of the congregation ('Figgins sends round boys selling unnumbered tickets for fetes and concerts in the village') were defamatory, and that Mr. Jones was actuated by malice. They awarded £100 and £200 damages.

The words spoken to Mr. Burnell, a sidesman, were actuated by malice. Damages of £200 awarded.

The jury also awarded £25 respecting words spoken by Mr. Jones to the Rev. Frederick Anderson, a former Vicar of the church.

Mr. Justice Hawke directed judgment to be entered for Mr. Figgins for £525 and costs.

Not Wise Or Prudent

Continuing his speech on behalf of the Vicar, Mr. Norman Birkett, K.C., submitted there was no evidence that when Mr. Jones spoke the words which he honestly believed were true, he did so maliciously.

Some people might say that if they had been the Vicar they would not have set a trap to catch the thief, whoever he was, red-handed.

It might not have been a wise and prudent thing to do, but that was not a matter to be decided.

Addressing the jury for Mr. Figgins, Mr. Gilbert Beyfus, K.C., said he wanted to be quite frank and candid about the Vicar.

"I put him before you," he continued, "as a man who is completely under the sway of his prejudices and dislikes, and a man completely unbalanced, completely reckless in his statements, and utterly incapable of the most elementary fair play."

Judge's 18 Questions

Mr. Beyfus submitted that the evidence showed that the Vicar was obsessed with a feeling of animosity against Mr. Figgins.

Summing-up, Mr. Justice Hawke said that two most important questions to be decided were whether it had been proved that Mr. Figgins was a thief, and whether the Vicar had been guilty of malice.

"Never mind," continued Mr. Justice Hawke, "whether you are church people or not; deal with this matter broadly."

The jury might think, he continued, that the Vicar was prompted by a single desire to find out who had been stealing church money and that the words he spoke were neces-

BRIDGE NOTES

A Magnificent Bid

By Ely Culbertson

If I were serving as the judge to determine the best-bid hand of the year—a sort of Pulitzer or Nobel prize in the field of contract bridge—I should unhesitatingly award the palm to Mr. Albert Morehead of New York. He was my partner, sitting South, when the following remarkable deal occurred.

West, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
S A K Q 9 3 6
H A K Q 5 3 2
D A
C None
S J 10 7 N S None
H 8 W E H J 10 9 7
DK 7 5 S D Q J 10
CA K Q 10 3 2 C J 9 8 7 6 5
S 5 4 3 2
H 6 4
D 9 8 6 4 3 2

The bidding:
West North East South
1C 2C 5C Pass
6C 7C Pass 7D
Pass 7H Pass 7S

* Final bid.
As sensational as the bidding was, it was no less logical. My own overcall of opponents' suit was, of course, the only possible choice on the first round. East's jump to five clubs was justified by his extraordinary distribution and the desire to shut out communications between myself and my partner. Obviously, Mr. Morehead could not make a free bid over five clubs. West's six bid really was of a defensive character—he felt that it was his best procedure to anticipate a slam bid by his vulnerable opponents and, possibly, induce a contract in the wrong suit. (He nearly succeeded).

With my terrific holding I was not satisfied with a measly small slam. I knew that a grand slam was assured if I could find South with four cards in either major suit. Hence, my second cue bid, at the range of seven! South's response was logical—he bid his six card diamond suit. Now came the crux of the hand: How many players would read my seven heart bid correctly? Mr. Morehead did. His perfect analysis was as follows: North's seven club cue bid forces a grand slam. The only problem is to find right suit. Obviously seven diamonds is not it, because North has taken that bid out to seven hearts. But North, if he could be sure of making seven hearts, would not have troubled with a seven club cue bid—then the heart bid must be an "asking bid." North insists that I choose between hearts and spades.

So, on the magnificent four card suit of 5 4 3 2. Mr. Morehead bid seven spades and earned my gratitude and admiration! His reasoning was flawless, and we were rewarded by making our contract without difficulty.

"But if he was reckless in what he said," proceeded the judge, "don't be afraid to say so because he is a Vicar. He is just as amenable to the law as anybody else." He left 18 questions for the jury.

L.C.C. THREAT TO HACKNEY MARSH

Protest By Local Ex-Mayors

ALTERNATIVE SITES

A letter setting out the case against the London County Council scheme for building working-class flats on Hackney Marsh has been sent to all Government supporters in Parliament by the Borough of Hackney Ex-Mayors' and Deputy Mayors' Open Spaces Preservation Council.

It is urged that, apart from the need for preserving the site as an open space, an important principle is involved by the L.C.C.'s decision to promote a bill in Parliament to override the decision of the High Court that the proposal was illegal.

The letter continues: "The High Court has ruled that the Open Spaces Act of 1893 is worded in a special way to preserve this land as an open space for public use for ever. By the Act the L.C.C. was constituted the trustee of the open space. Now the trustee is seeking powers to legalise a breach of the trust."

Threats to Future

"If this is to be the fate of an open space so protected by a special Act, what may happen to other open spaces in the future, as the majority of such open spaces have not similar special protection? Is their continued existence to be subject to the whim of a Local Authority for the time being in office, and of a Government department? If so, our parks and playing fields would be safer in the custody of a non-political body like the National Trust."

The letter argues that slum clearance can be accomplished and overcrowding relieved without building on Hackney Marsh. It is claimed that sites now covered by old and dilapidated houses, factories and warehouses could be acquired for working-class flats. Such sites have been offered to the L.C.C. and refused.

Prime Consideration

"Our long experience on the Housing Committee of the Hackney Borough Council, and in connection with a housing trust, enables us to state that you can, without overcrowding, re-house from two to three times as many people on a cleared slum site as were housed there before the clearance. You pull down a dwelling of one or two storeys, and erect in its place a building of four or five storeys."

"But the L.C.C. would have to buy such sites as have been indicated, whereas they hope to get the Hackney Marsh site free. We suspect that this is one of the prime considerations in their proposal."

WEDGWOOD AND SONS

Famous Pottery Firm To Move

Stoke-On-Trent.—The famous pottery firm of Josiah Wedgwood and Sons Ltd., which has been established at Etruria, Stoke-on-Trent, since 1769, has decided to move to a new site.

In an official statement issued by the firm recently it was stated that the position of the new factory had not yet been decided upon, but that a site known as Barlaston Hall, between Stoke-on-Trent and Stone and about four miles from the Potteries, was being seriously considered.

Mr. Josiah Wedgwood, jun., managing director, made this announcement to about 1,000 employees.

The new factory will be equipped on the most modern lines, and the firing will be done entirely without smoke. It is proposed to establish a garden village, of which the factory will be the centre, surrounded by 500 houses, playing fields and other amenities.

QUINTUPLETS INSURED

Film Company's £50,000 Policy

The Diendonne quintuplets, aged one year and 11 months, have been insured at Lloyd's for £50,000. The policy is worded to the effect that a total loss of the full amount insured shall be paid if one or more of the children dies during the next 12 months at their home at Callender, Ontario.

The insurance is understood to have been taken out by an American film corporation which has obtained rights for filming the children.

It is understood that a large part of the insurance was placed at $2 10s. but the market became "full" and to finish the order rates up to 57 10s per cent. were paid.

Mineral deficiency

stands between you and REAL HEALTH

One small defect impairs the efficiency of the most perfect piece of mechanism. And that applies to nature's masterpiece—your body. If the cells are starved ill-health follows. Calcium is the one vital mineral without which the life centre of the body cells would shrivel and die, and Kalzana supplies this element in a form which the system can easily assimilate and retain.

By remedying this deficiency and making the cell-nucleus plump and strong, Kalzana gets right to the root of ill health. Kalzana improves the condition of the blood, strengthens the whole body and supplies the teeth with the elements they need to keep them hard and white and immune from decay. A course of Kalzana quickly gives new strength and vigour—begin yours to-day.

"I am never without Kalzana, not taking them every day, but at any time of extra strain, and when there are colds and other infections about."

ADAM HOLLAND'S FOUR SAVE KOWLOON B.G.C. FROM DEFEAT

A scene during last Wednesday's Open Rinks Lawn Bowls Championship encounter on the Police green, where W. Macfarlane's quartette beat C. G. Silva's H.K. Electric four by 25 shots to 12. K.I.T.C. EASILY DEFEAT K.C.C. AT KING'S PARK

HUSSAIN BROTHERS AND G. LEE IN THE LIMELIGHT

THE Kowloon Indians' Tennis Club secured a comfortable victory in the "C" Division of the Lawn Tennis League yesterday, when they beat the Kowloon Cricket Club "B" team on the latter's courts by 7 sets to 2, securing a winning lead in the first round, when they led by the odd set in three.

D. Orr, and G. Lee, probably the oldest playing member in all five divisions of the League, were the outstanding players for the home team, while the Hussain brothers and Dr. Mahan Singh share for the winners.

POLICE TEAM WITHOUT G. CARRUTHERS

Four fixtures in the "D" Division of the Lawn Tennis League will take place this afternoon, although at first the C.R.A.-K.I.T.C. match was postponed owing to a question of grounds, the former playing all their matches on away courts, and the Indians' courts being utilised by the Radio, who are also without home courts. However, the Radio have now arranged to play off their home fixture against Craigengower on the latter's courts at the Valley.

The Radio, who have a fairly strong team, are making one change, David Leonard replacing M. H. Hassan. Craigengower have been hard hit by illness to two of their players, both T. Locke and G. Choa being laid up in bed. As most of their reserve players have participated in the "C" Division, they are now experiencing great difficulty in securing two other players to fill the vacancies.

Completely Reshuffled South China are making no changes for their encounter with the Police, but the latter have completely reshuffled their team. (Continued on Page 10)

CIVIL SERVICE RINK SECURE POSSIBLE

RECREIO'S MERITORIOUS WIN OVER INDIANS

(By "Skip")

LAST Saturday's Lawn Bowls League programme was very nearly washed out by early morning rainfall, but the weather cleared extraordinarily well to permit all matches to be played to a conclusion, although the Kowloon encounters did not make a start until 4 p.m. The outstanding feature of the programme was the third "possible" of the season, secured by H. F. Westlake senior's Junior Civil Service rink, comprising H. F. Westlake, Jr., C. Champelovier and A. Bower.

There were some very close tussles in the premier League, the Indians very nearly upsetting calculations against Club de Recreio! The latter were strongly favoured to win even although they were away from home, and that they did so was entirely due to F. X. M. Silva, who led Dallas after the ninth head, when he rallied from a bad start by taking the lead with a four. With H. A. Alves and C. G. Silva's games completed and one head to go on the other rink and with the scores level, "F.X." did the trick with a pretty four to snatch the points.

The Taikoo outfit did not do as well as I expected, although Wallace once more played a good game to secure the better of Hollands, while Drummond had a close fight with Mair. Chalmers' rink was outplayed by Shepherd's four, who were back to form again and had a majority of 19 shots in the end.

In the Civil Service and Craigengower "B" match which I thought the former would win, a close fight ended with a five-shot victory for the former. The Civil Servants tried out Macgowan as skip in place of Deakin, but his debut was not successful as he went down by "B" and "F" teams will clash in the four down at the 16th head. From then onwards it was all Rossetti, who chalked up 14 in the last five heads without reply. Jones was again in good form and beat Way by 26-10, whilst Hollidge just scraped home against Gill, by a couple of shots.

The Police entertain the Kowloon Dock team and should be able to repeat last year's success. The Docks' strongest team would be hard to beat if they all turned out at once—I notice that Cullen again played for them last week and am glad that he has sufficiently recovered from his illness. (Continued on Page 10)

Not the least interesting of this Saturday's League Lawn Bowls matches will be the two domestic affairs down for decision—Craigengower "A" meet Craigengower "B" and the Football Club "A" and "B" teams will clash in the Second Division, and I do not imagine it will be a case of the pupils beating the masters in this case.

J. FRASER RETAINS 100 PER CENT.

H. ROSE LEADS JUNIOR DIVISION

Only two skips, who have skipped in three or more matches, have retained their 100 per cent. records to date, J. Fraser, the Kowloon Cricket Club senior skip, having won all four of his matches to date, while H. H. Rose, of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, leads the Junior skips with the fine record of seven wins in as many games.

In spite of his defeat at the hands of Fraser's K.C.C. rink last Saturday, R. Duncan, the defeated Colony Singles champion, still retains his position at the top of the First Division table, being 80 shots up, while A. Hyde-Lay, with an equal number of wins, is 45 shots in arrears.

YOUNG PLAYERS TO PLAY "DOWN UNDER"

FRENCH TENNIS TRIUMPH

BOROTRA AND BERNARD OUTSTANDING

BRITISH DAVIS CUP PAIR BEATEN

(By A. Wallis Meyers)
 Auteuil, May 26.

THE French doubles championship has been restored to France. In the final here to-day Jean Borotra and his young left-handed compatriot, Marcel Bernard, beat G. P. Hughes and C. R. D. Tuckey, the British Davis Cup pair, by 3 sets to one. The score was 6-2, 3-6, 9-7, 6-1.

This is Borotra's 6th success in an event in which his gesture has always shone. He has held the title three times with Rene Lacoste and twice with Jacques Brugnon. To-day, despite his 33 years and the cares of business, he was still the energised scrambling player I first saw jumping the net after his first victory at St. Cloud as a young Basque 14 years ago.

It was a great match, played at a high tension with the finest heart, and worthy of a spectacle to rank with a long line of classic foursums seen in the Stade. But it did not boil up to fever heat until each side had won a set.

Remarkable Record

ONE of the Colony's finest Rugby threequarters and a member of the Central British Association "B" Division Lawn Tennis League team, J. J. Ferguson has a brilliant sporting record.

Born in Dundee, he first turned his attention to the track and field and in 1923 was the junior athletic champion of Dundee High School.

Two years later he became the School's senior champion athlete, and the following year was elected captain of Rugby.

He entered Edinburgh University later in 1926 and represented them at boxing, winning the light-heavyweight championship in 1927, 1928 and 1929.

He entered London University in the latter part of 1929 and won the Varsity's athletic championship in May, 1930. He recorded his best athletic feat when he won the Shot Putt and Throwing the Hammer events at the Inter-University Sports at the White City the same year.

Ferguson was also playing Rugby at the time and secured a three-quarter berth in the London University fifteen, while he also played for the London County Council.

He again secured honours at boxing when he won the light-heavyweight championship of London University.

He first came into the limelight on the sports fields of the Colony in 1933 when he secured Interport Rugby recognition against Shanghai in 1933 as a wing-threequarter. In the following year he was again selected for the Colony Interport Rugby XV and also played for the Combined Colony XV against the Australian Universities' touring side. He holds the Shot Putt record at Volunteer Athletic Meetings.

[Another personality will appear to-morrow.]

TURNBULL'S CLAIMS ADVANCED

OLDFIELD'S CHANCE OF INCLUSION

HAROLD LARWOOD STILL FAST

(By Howard Marshall)

London, May 26.

AT last I begin to feel that the cricket season has really started. Right-minded people, no doubt, have felt it weeks ago, but I take longer to warm up. The game begins in a phase of unreality. The player make their strokes and swing their arms over, the ball flies to its appointed place, but the ghosts do not materialise.

Strange things happen. Yorkshire are beaten by Worcestershire. Kent, good luck to them, head the championship table. Sutcliffe fails to make runs. We watch and speculate. And then, suddenly, for no accountable reason, the trick is done, and cricket is before us.

This year, for me at least, it has materialised rather earlier and more decisively than usual. The game is most reassuringly alive. Interest is keen and widespread, possibly because we shall so soon be challenging Australia. People everywhere are talking cricket, talking it much more than they did last year. And cricket, fortunately, is proving worthy of discussion.

Still, the main topic is the England captaincy, and on all sides I hear the claims of Maurice Turnbull advanced. And why not? Turnbull is a fine captain and a fine player. He will surely be seriously considered. Turnbull, and Sellers, of Yorkshire—these are the two men who seem to be the hottest favourites, though the official and corporate mind of the selectors may not agree. [Allen was selected to lead the England XI against All-India in the first Test.]

Oldfield's Chances
 One thing at least is certain—our young players are coming up to scratch. Oldfield, of Lancashire, played an innings recently which made those good judges, who saw it say that he should be picked for Australia right away. It may be that Oldfield is not yet so dependable a batsman as others. He has his days. He takes his chances. He is a cricketer, though, in the royal line, an attacking batsman by nature, and the pity of it is that attacking batsmen are not always encouraged.

I am not advocating wild hitting. There is nothing wild, or blind, or foolish about cricket. I do suggest, though, that we need the batsmen who go for the runs in normal circumstances instead of letting the runs come. They fail sometimes, and we dismiss them as inconsistent. If only we would encourage them their failures might grow less frequent and their powers reach full strength.

We need players, indeed, who keep the game moving. Such a one is Lt. J. W. A. Stephenson, of Essex, whose combination of gusto and fast-medium paced bowling is bringing him into prominence. Cricket is a game, when all is said and done, and zest has a part in it.

Breakers Ahead

Now that something of the shouting and the tumult has died, it may be profitable to consider the situation in local Chinese politics and attempt to assess all the conflicting factors at their true perspective. Let us admit in the beginning that we have the utmost sympathy for the galling sense of frustration under which the South-west is labouring. National consciousness is a tender plant, very sensitive to the wafts and winds of insult and repression. When they come, as they do in this case, from a powerful neighbour who, by a truly searing policy of insult and humiliation, has sought in every way in recent years to pile indignity upon indignity in her treatment of China, those to whom national consciousness is something more than a name are bound to feel resentment and anger. Looking back over the recent relations between China and Japan one is conscious of a continual and relentless policy of persecution. Whole territories have been detached; every political artifice has been used to pile further humiliations on the Chinese Republic; and latterly, worst of all, a consistent campaign, so to weaken her financial resources as to make the country helpless has been pursued, openly and without the slightest attempt at justification, by the smuggling campaign in the North. No wonder, then, that the agitation for some sort of stand against this policy of aggression has been sponsored by the political factions in the South-west.

But in saying that one is also reluctantly compelled to state in unequivocal terms that the campaign is ill-advised, premature and likely to do immense harm to the very precepts which the South-west is seeking to uphold. Only an absolutely united country—in both the political and material senses—can possibly hope to effect any concrete resistance. A house divided against itself cannot stand; and that aphorism is as true to-day as it ever was—in the case of China more so. Every indication that the South-west gives that it does not support—in fact and in principle—the policies of the Central Government is a further indication of that lack of unity which the enemies of the country are so eager to exploit. It is obvious that depredations will be far more easily accomplished against a country weakened by dissension than against one politically strong. Where there are several factors working against each other there is bound, also to be political instability; when the leader of the country talks with one voice and the individual factions put up a babel of conflicting sounds, then the way of the encroaching foe is easy. A little snip here and a little snip there, and the thing is done. Combined and effective resistance is completely absent; depredations, open and covert, are rendered too easy to accomplish, because there is no homogenous political force which can supplement verbal and written protests by action.

It appears to us, therefore, that there is little to win and everything to lose by the forcing of internal differences to a head. It has yet to be known, also, exactly how much the people—as opposed to the politicians—of the territory are behind the machinations. It is probably true to say that they are completely apathetic—cer-

The Moribund Sun

THE Sun, like all the other fixed stars, is a tremendous power station, generating energy in its interior. This energy is unceasingly poured out into space at the rate of 50 horsepower to every square inch of the sun's surface. Radiation has weight. It is estimated that the total radiation which pours out from the sun every second weighs more than 4 million tons. Thus the sun is losing weight at the rate of about 250 million tons every minute, or about 360 billion tons every 24 hours.

Mr. Teehee

HOUSTON B. Teehee, a full blood Cherokee Indian of Tahlequah, Oklahoma, was Register of the Treasury in President Wilson's administration. His signature appears on a record quantity of American currency and on all the Liberty Bonds. The name Teehee was a nickname given by the Union troops in the Civil War to his father Di-hi-bi (the Killer), who fought on the Union side. The younger Mr. Teehee was a ward of the United States Government until 1910, when the Government Guardianship over him was removed.

"Uncle," he said, after his grandfather had left the room, "how old is grandpa?"
"I couldn't tell you," answered his uncle, "without looking it up in the family Bible."
"My word!" gasped the child, "is he old enough to be mentioned in the Bible?"

WORLD'S LARGEST DREDGE

Re-Conditioned In Local Yard

The largest dredge in the world ever designed to operate on a gold deposit left Hong Kong yesterday afternoon for Manila, after being thoroughly reconditioned by the Taikoo Dockyard and being converted from oil burning to coal burning.

Mr. G. W. Kerr, engineer of the mine consultation staff of Marsman and Company, leaves this evening after a short visit here during which he inspected the work done on the dredge and supervised its departure.

tainly not enthusiastic about the political demerches of their leaders. And while it is true that it is sometimes a good thing to rouse the people from their apathy, it is also true to say that there is a time for doing this, just as much as there is a time when it should certainly not be done. There would appear to be good grounds for the advice to the South-west to draw in their horns. The country is about to enter upon a new epoch in its history. Some sort of unification is to be attempted by the new constitution which it is proposed to introduce. At worst the political status of the country, under the new constitution, should not be jeopardised; at best, there is a real chance that compact cohesion may be attained. In the circumstances all political embarrasments forced upon the Central Government from within are ill-advised and untimely at the moment. The South-west will best serve its own purpose as well as the purpose of China at large by holding its hand at the present juncture.

Here There and Everywhere

HUSTLE! BUSTLE!

One of the secrets of Lord Allenby's success in the war was the fact that, unlike most other commanders of comparable rank, he believed in seeing for himself what was happening in the front line.

Before the Arras offensive in 1917 he flew over the German lines to get a first-hand impression of the front his army was to attack.

His desire for personal knowledge of what was going on led him, when he commanded the Third Army, to a very hot corner in the front line at Monchy-le-Preux.

There he found a very young, very exquisite and completely unperturbed young officer.

"Well, young man," said Allenby, "and what's your name?"

"Russel," was the reply.

"Well, Russel, hustle! bustle!"

"No, sir. Not Hustle. Not Bustle. Russel, sir—with two 's's' and one 'l'."

PREDESTINED

When Allenby was transferred from the Western Front to Egypt in 1917 he was not at all anxious to go. Gen. Sir Beauvoir de Lisle saw him at the Grosvenor Hotel before he started. Allenby told him that he was not at all pleased at the prospect.

"The last man failed, and I do not see why I should succeed."

Sir Beauvoir reminded him that he had always got his big guns. Allenby replied gloomily that they had all been sunk in the Mediterranean.

Sir Beauvoir, who later was to preach a sermon at St. Martin-in-the-Fields, consoled him with the Biblical predictions contained in a book published in the 'eighties, "The Light of the Last Days." These all pointed to 1917 as the year of the delivery of Jerusalem from Turkish rule.

Allenby was much impressed by a prophecy which was to prove so remarkably accurate.

THIS SCHOOLROOM OF PRINCES ROYAL FOREIGNERS AT ENGLISH SCHOOLS

IMPOSING LISTS OF MEN WHO HAVE STUDIED IN BRITAIN

(By N. P. Macdonald)

Prince Makonnen, second son of the Abyssinian Emperor, is sent to school in England, he will be following in the footsteps of another Prince from Abyssinia.

That was Prince Alamayahu. His father, the Emperor Theodore, was found dead by Lord Napier when he captured Magdala in 1867.

Lord Napier took charge of the Royal orphan, and sent him to Rugby. Those at school with him described the Prince as slim and handsome, and quite good at games. A victim of the English climate, he died soon after leaving Rugby, and is buried in St. George's Chapel, Windsor.

But it is not only Abyssinian royalty who favour education in England. Five reigning kings, and members of almost every royal family have been educated, either partly, or wholly, there.

King Leopold

King Leopold of the Belgians is an Old Etonian, and in the ante-room of his Palace at Brussels are photographs of Eton taken by him in his schooldays.

The Belgian Crown Prince, as he was then, was unwilling to stay at Eton while his country was being invaded. He sent continual messages to King Albert, asking permission to return. Eventually his father gave in, and at the age of 13 King Leopold was enrolled as a private in the Belgian Army.

Filling sandbags was his first task on active service, and the bags were so heavy that he could scarcely lift them. But he insisted on doing the work. Later, he returned to Eton, where he was a contemporary of the Duke of Gloucester, and remained there until the Armistice.

An old Harrovian monarch rules Iraq in the person of the twenty-three-year-old King Ghazi. He did not make rapid progress at Harrow, and he left when quite young. But he can speak English fluently, which his father, King Feisal, was never able to do.

Lucky King

Ghazi is not so "pro-British" as his father was, although he went to school in England. But so far he has been a lucky King. In the first fifteen months of his reign he dealt successfully with five Ministerial crises.

Death robbed the young King of a neighbouring country of his real education there. The new King of Egypt had only been in England six months, which he spent preparing for Woolwich, when he had to take his place on a vacant throne.

Another King who made only a short stay there is the young Peter of Jugoslavia. As with King Farouk, the hand of death cut short his English education, and beckoned to him to mount a throne before he was ready.

Ex-King Of Siam

Various members of royal families on the retired list went to school in England. Ex-King Pradjadhipok of Siam is an Old Etonian, and has retired to a house not far from his former school.

The present Prince of the Asturias, Don Juan, was at Dartmouth, and later joined the Navy for a time. Two grandchildren of the ex-Kaiser, Princess Cecilie Victoria, youngest daughter of the ex-Crown Prince, and a daughter of the Duchess of Brunswick, who is the Kaiser's only daughter, have attended English schools.

Another member of the Brunswick family, Prince Ernst Augustus of Hanover, was at Oxford, and later fell foul of the authorities for a motoring offence. The heir to one of the smallest countries in Europe, Prince John of Luxemburg, is now at school at Ampleforth.

WARNER BAXTER EXCELS IN "PRISONER OF SHARK ISLAND"

EX-MARRIED COUPLE STAR IN "THE MOON IS OUR HOME"

TWO BRITISH PICTURES TO BE SHOWN

By Diane

THE Prisoner of Shark Island gives us a page from American history, the poignant story of Samuel Mudd, a country doctor who innocently set the leg of John Wilkes Booth, Lincoln's assassin, and was sent to prison for life. John Ford, who gave us such a great picture in "The Informer," is responsible for the direction, and Warner Baxter has one of the finest acting parts of his long career.

Mudd was sent to the American "Shark's Island" — off the coast of Florida — for life, and, after a thwarted escape, he became a hero by ridding the island of yellow fever, receiving for his bravery a pardon from the Government. Several scenes in this dramatic play are as gripping as anything you will see this season, and in addition, to the superb work of the director and cast, the camera men give of their best.

This is easily one of the "meanest" roles Warner Baxter has had, and the choice of Twentieth Century-Fox was a wise one in making him the star. Gloria Stuart is lovely and capable as his wife, Claude Gillingwater stands out as an irate old Southern gentleman; John Carradine also makes good in a "mean" role; and special mention must be made of the work of the late O. P. Heggie (his last picture). Others in the splendid cast are Arthur Byron, Harry Carey, Francis Ford, John McGuire, Frank McGlynn Senr., and many more.

Though distressing and disturbing, this picture is one to be recommended. Warner Baxter alone gives once more demonstrations of his amazing versatility and proves that there are few finer actors on the screen. The picture depresses because it shows the horrors of man's injustice to man, but this historic fact has made super screen material and, with the co-operation of Darryl Zanuck, the whole cast help in making a picture that will be long remembered. (Alhambra and King's).

"O'Malley Of The Mounted"

In the title role, George O'Brien has his best role to date — and that is saying something. The picture gives the popular actor a chance to display both brain and brawn to advantage. We find him taking on a whole band of desperadoes, but, needless to say, he licks them to within an inch of their worthless lives, and thereby wins the undying love of the pretty heroine, Irene Ware. Miss Ware adds charm to the scenery, while James Bush (remembered in "Ceiling Zero") is convincing as the young brother for whom she risks her life. Victor Pote and Stanley Fields are among the best in support. Certainly worth seeing. (Alhambra).

"Love On A Bet"

Paramount lent Wendy Barrie to R.K.O. to co-star with Gene Raymond in "Love on a Bet," and incidentally gave "Hong Kong's" daughter, the best chance she has yet had in Hollywood. The plot is absurd, but there are lots of laughs, with extra special good work turned in by the two leading players, assisted by Helen Broderick (remembered in "Top Hat"). Coming shortly to the Alhambra.

"Where's George?"

In answer to the demand of local Britishers the King's are putting on two British pictures within the week. "Where's George?" starring the Yorkshire comedian Sydney Howard, is average farcical comedy with most of the limelight on the star. The best sequences are the dreams wherein Howard sees himself as a Wild West man, and at a burlesque Rugby Football match, where he distinguishes himself in the last 10 minutes and becomes the hero of the hour. A great deal of the film is occupied with poor Sydney pouring out his troubles to "George" the foal, while the wife (Mabel Constanduros) and the brothers-in-law (Lesley Sarony) makes his life almost unbearable.

If you are an admirer of Sydney Howard's peculiar mannerisms, voice and walk you will find plenty of opportunity for laughs in this slight story of the down-trodden blacksmith who blossoms out unexpectedly as a football "star." (King's).

"Forgotten Faces"

This is the story of a man's struggle and sacrifice to protect something he loves — his daughter — from the one person in the world who can hurt her — her own mother. To accomplish this, he is forced to wreak a strange vengeance on the woman he once loved. This strong drama of bitter hate, passion, revenge and young romance finds excellent interpretations — not only from the two leading players, Herbert Marshall and Gertrude Michael — but from the rest of the well chosen cast.

Jane Rhodes and Robert Cummings, as the young lovers, and James Burke, Arthur Hohl, Robert Gleckler, Alan Edwards, Alonzo Price contribute largely to the success. Both Herbert Marshall and Miss Michael essay something new in characterisations, and this should prove the big attraction to admirers of this tremendously popular leading man and the attractive Miss Michael. Now on at the Queen's.

As the heroic wife of the man who suffered the most tragic fate in American history, Gloria Stuart is coupled with Warner Baxter in "The Prisoner of Shark Island," which will be shown at the King's and Alhambra Theatres to-morrow.

Star, Kowloon

"The Irish In Us," starring Pat O'Brien and James Cagney, is a rough story of an Irish-American family. You might like it.

This will be followed by "Milky Way," the best of the Harold Lloyd talkies to date. He has surrounded himself with a fine team of players, and Adolphe Menjou, Verree Teasdale, Helen Mack, Dorothy Wilson, William Gargan, Lionel Stander, George Barbier, Dorothy Wilson, Marjorie Gatenon and others keep the fun excellent by sustained, through clever situations, snappy dialogue and a great deal of satire. Lloyd is perfect as the mild fellow who blossoms surprisingly when he is forced into the limelight with his well-loved milk-cart horse—the sequences with the foal are among the most amusing, although there is a touch of pathos to the situation. Leo McCarey's direction keeps an amusing story moving at a fast pace, and easily makes this the screen-classic Boxing story to date.

"Woman Trap" is next on the list. It is an excitingly-told story of jewel thieves versus "C" men and a smart reporter, played by George Murphy. The kidnapping of a pretty girl (Gertrude Michael) adds to the thrills. Sydney Blackmer and Akim Tamiroff do splendid work. The cast do well with the melodrama and make it worth seeing. (Star).

EVERYONE will be anxious to see the ex-husband make love to his ex-wife in "The Moon Is Our Home." As a matter of fact this picture started the fashion of co-starring two young people who had been once happily married.

Margaret Sullivan and Henry Fonda acted on the stage together in New York — both had big reputations — then the wife went to Hollywood and there made her name world famed, and the separation caused divorce. The husband followed to play his original role in "The Farmer Takes A Wife" with Janet Gaynor, and he too found screen fame. In the meantime the ex-wife had married Director Wyler, but that was recently dissolved, and Paramount hit upon the idea of scoring in a big way in the box-office by placing them together in a story, "The Moon's Our Home." Women audiences will specially revel in their love scenes, and the sparkling dialogue, which they enact with such skill.

The story tells of a spoiled movie queen and a spoiled young author who want to get away from the adulations of crowds. They meet accidentally and fall in love at first sight. Later they hide in a snow-bound farm, but their difficulty lies in not daring to tell each other who they are. You won't be able to keep from smiling when you hear these two ask if they will love each other always, no matter what the circumstances.

You will read in the movie magazines now how Mr. Fonda says he will not re-marry Margaret, and Margaret tells a waiting world of cinema-fans that she, too, has no intention of again being Mrs. Fonda. Well, anyhow, in this comedy-drama they act with distinct emotion and most of us will feel that it won't be too long before they do decide to make it up and try once more. This is a picture you would be unwise to miss.

William Seiter directs this original story by Faith Baldwin with his usual skill, and Beniah Bondi, Hettiatta Crossman, Lucien Littlefield, Charles Butterworth, Walter Brennan and many more help considerably. Mainly to see the ex-Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fonda will be the attraction, but their acting and charm in two most suitable roles ensures real enjoyment. (Queen's).

"Top Hat"

This delightful R.K.O. Musical with the two most popular dance artists on stage or screen — Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire — is coming to the Alhambra for one day only by special request. Edward Everett Horton, Helen Broderick, Eric Blone and Erik Rhodes contribute in no small way to the film's outstanding success, but the famous dancing team are alone worth seeing again and again. (Alhambra).

"Fighting Stock"

Another of the enjoyable but typical Tom Walls-Ralph Lynn farces, with Robertson Hare responsible for most of the laughs. The author of many famous Aldwych farces wrote the play — Ben Travers — and it enables all three men to give their usual characterisations. The story tells of a Baronet (Tom Walls) who has a tremendous opinion of himself as a fighting man, a roving eye for a pretty woman, and a passion for port. Lynn is his silly-ass nephew, also with roving eye, but no fighting instincts. Robertson Hare is the humble respectable secretary, while other good performances are turned in by Marie Lohr, Veronica Rose, Herbert Lomas, Lesley Wareing and Mary Jerrold. (King's).

Oriental

"The Last Days of Pompeii," with Preston Foster, Alan Hale, John Wood, Basil Rathbone and thousands more, is a grand spectacular show, has an interesting story with the religious atmosphere reverently sustained, astonishing technical effects, marvellous photography and keeps the interest from start to finish. Well worth seeing.

REAL SITUATION OBSCURED MASS OF PROPAGANDA ISSUED FROM OFFICIAL AND OTHER SOURCES

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday. Preventive guards of the Salt Bureau were mobilised last evening for the East River valley to take up the defence of those districts near Fukien. Although there is talk of peace between Canton and the South-west and Nanking, the military authorities here are not taking any chances, owing to the heavy concentration of Nanking troops in Fukien, Kiangsi and Hunan. The future is full of possibilities.

LOCAL TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

One Person Killed
Last Week

WOMAN KNOCKED DOWN
BY TRAMCAR

In the Colony of Hong Kong, including the Island, Kowloon and the New Territories, during the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday last, there were altogether 53 traffic accidents, as the result of which one person was killed and 21 persons were injured.

The person killed was a Chinese female, who died as the result of a fractured skull received when she was knocked down by a tramcar whilst walking across the road.

Of the persons injured, 14 were pedestrians who were either walking or running across the road and were struck by vehicles.

Two bus passengers and one tramcar passenger were injured while alighting from moving motor-buses and a moving tramcar, respectively.

One lorry-passenger was injured through falling from a moving motor lorry. One lorry passenger was injured when the vehicle overturned.

A private car driver was injured when his vehicle collided with a tramway standard. A private car passenger was injured when the vehicle collided with an iron road-sign.

Of the 53 accidents, 26 were collisions between vehicles; 16 were collisions between vehicles and pedestrians; and 11 accidents were due to other causes.

IMPERSONATION OF POLICEMAN

Unemployed Man
Sentenced

Pang Tung, aged 23, unemployed, was this morning sentenced to six months' hard labour by Mr. S. F. Balfour at the Central Magistracy when he was charged with impersonating a Police officer and attempting to arrest Wong Hing.

Detective-Sergeant Byron said that at about 11.30 last night complainant was walking down Garden Road with his sister, when defendant came up to them and said he was a policeman. The woman tried to run away, whereupon he told her that if she did he would arrest her.

Defendant said that the complainant and the woman were carrying parcels, and if they contained opium he would inform a police. He told them he was assisting the Police.

Defendant had seven previous convictions.

One case each of enteric fever and cerebro-spinal fever were reported to the Local Health authorities during the 24 hours ended on Wednesday.

Newspapers in Shanghai published the report that Kwangsi had employed over 100 Japanese advisers and had bought large consignments of arms from that country. The Japanese advisers were reported to have left the province, but there is no denial of the buying of arms and ammunition from Japan on credit.

The anti-Japanese agitations are kept alive by the military and Kuomintang authorities in the hope of rallying national support, but the people are indifferent. They are worried by the high cost of living, especially of rice. Students are cold to anti-Japanese activities, as on the last occasion certain people wounded them with sticks and iron bars.

Considerable propaganda is disseminated from Canton and Nanking in the form of interviews and circular telegrams. The real situation is hidden by this mass of propaganda coming from official and unofficial sources.

MR. CHOU LU'S TOUR

Visiting Premiers
In Europe

SOUNDING STATE LEADERS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday. Though much sought after by Nanking and Canton, Mr. Chou Lou, Chancellor of Sun Yat-sen University and veteran Kuomintang leader, reached Naples to-day aboard the Italian liner Victoria and will remain in Europe for the next 2 1/2 months.

There is no truth in the Nanking report that Mr. Chou will be in the capital on July 10 to attend the second plenary session of the Kuomintang Central Executive Committee. At present Mr. Chou is scheduled to meet Signor Mussolini, Chancellor Hitler and Mr. Stanley Baldwin.

The object is to find out from these European leaders what support they will give to China in the event of military resistance to Japanese aggression. Mr. Chou was welcomed by Chinese residents in Manila, Singapore and elsewhere, when he passed through these places.

Mr. Chou will remain in Europe to observe the international situation, although Nanking and Canton wish him to come back to China for public service.

POLICE FOOTBALL CLUB'S ANNUAL MEETING

"On the question of clean play on the field, there was no case whatever, among the Europeans, of players being sent off the field, though there were two or three cases among the Chinese Police, and here opinions differ as to the extent of their guilt," said Mr. A. R. S. Major presiding at the annual meeting of the Police Football Club held in the Police Library this morning.

Mr. Major, in the course of his review of the year's work, congratulated the Police team on being runners-up in the Senior Shield and for their high position in the premier League. He noticed that goal-scoring was their weakness. As regards the second eleven, they had not been so successful, but they had nothing to worry about, as they had always to supply players to the senior team.

The Chinese, he said, did well for their second year in the League, finishing near the top—

TENNIS VISITORS SAY FAREWELL

SIAMESE TEAM
LEAVING

MUANG REONG PRAISES
LOCAL PLAYERS

Mr. Muang Reong, one of the Siamese tennis stars who figured in exhibition matches against the leading local players during the past fortnight, is very generous in his praise of the high standard of tennis in the Colony. He says that the players that they have come up against are definitely better exponents of the game than they are, although they have won almost every one of their matches here.

Together with Messrs. Prachaub, Sanoh and Ranong, Mr. Muang Reong will leave the Colony this afternoon by the s.s. Hiram for Siam, and he mentioned to the China Mail that they will be taking away with them the pleasantest memories of their stay here.

Mr. Reong said that in his opinion the elder Tsui and Sirdar Rumjahn were the best players in Hong Kong, modestly adding that he won his match at the H.K.C.C. against the latter "more by luck than anything else."

Interport Matches

They had not expected to win many matches here, Mr. Reong said, and the visit was more in the nature of a goodwill tour than a tennis invasion, but they were highly elated at the success they had met with. The Siamese tennis championships take place about February every year and Mr. Reong expressed the hope that some of our players would be able to make the trip to their country in order to take part in them. They were endeavouring to promote interport matches between Hong Kong and Siam, he concluded, and said that the whole team were looking forward to coming here again.

IVORY CURIO THEFT

Accused Ordered To Pay Compensation

Ip Sang, unemployed, who was yesterday charged with the theft of an ivory curio and nine opium pipes, was this morning ordered to pay $60 amends or serve six weeks' imprisonment by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy. Defendant was also bound over in a bond of $100 for one year.

Defendant was remanded yesterday to see how long it would take to cure him of his opium habit. This morning, Inspector Carey said that he had seen Dr. Shaw, who told him that much depended on the physical condition and the length of time a person had been an addict. In an average case a fortnight was sufficient.

Loveless, of No. 134 Argyle Street, ground floor, on June 10 was admitted by Tam Huen, aged 25, coolie, when he was brought before Mr. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday morning. Asked what he had done with the $48, defendant replied that he had lost it in gambling. The Magistrate sentenced defendant to one month's hard labour, and ordered $48 amends to be paid to complainant, failing which defendant is to serve another month's hard labour, the terms to run consecutively.

Forty students, four priests, and three brothers arrived in the Colony by the s.s. DAMAGED

HAWKER SEVERELY INJURED

An explosion, believed to have been caused by a bomb, occurred at No. 261, Des Voeux Road Central at about 10.50 last night. The premises were those used by the British American Tailor Company. Two Chinese, Tso Fook, aged 35, an unlicensed hawk, and Chan On, a coolie, who were sleeping on the pavement, were injured and sent to the Government Civil Hospital, the former in a grave condition. Lau Ng, a married woman, and her daughter Cheung Kin, aged 7, who were passing at the time, were also injured but were not detained in Hospital.

The Police are still making enquiries and believe that the explosion was caused by a home-made bomb, as the door had been badly splintered.

Boy Pleads With
Father In Court

When a 16-year-old boy appeared at Kingston Juvenile Court last month on the ground that he was beyond the control on his parents, the father said:

"He has had seven or eight jobs, and on one occasion, when he came home and said he wanted to throw up his job, he punched his mother out of the room. He hit me, and got hold of a carving knife."

The Boy: I won't do it again.

The Father: You have been promising me that for two years.

The Boy: Won't you forgive me, and give me another chance?

The Father: I have given you a thousand chances, and forgiven you a thousand times.

The boy was remanded, with a view to his being sent to an approved school.

When the other two rinks had finished, the Kowloon Bowling Green Club were two shots up. Bright, leading for Duncan, drew his two woods to the side of the jack and Hall sent another one in before trying to block. The home team in their efforts to move out the counters had gone through a couple of yards or so and looked in for a winning count if the jack should go back, and back it went as a result of a shot by Goodwin, who trailed the jack for four. Randle came up heavy to knock one up for second shot, and that was the end of it! The head was so "bottled up" that the skips could do nothing.

Fraser in Form

Guy's rink could make nothing of Fraser, who was in deadly form, but a little more forcefulness on the part of the skip would have been of more advantage. It was left to Holland's team to carry the points, and they responded well to the call.

The match against the champions at Kowloon Dock did not produce anything sensational apart from the fact that, as usual, the Craigengower team were in a none too safe position three-quarters of the way through the game, and had to call upon their best for a really substantial victory.

Civil Service's Success

The biggest win in the Second Division was secured by the Civil Service second string, who won by 40 shots against the Football Club "B" team.

The Civil Servants tried out three new skips as an experiment, and it certainly came off successfully, for all three scored wins.

Cullip, who used to play for them some years ago, returned to the Colony recently and soon found his form—His win on Saturday augurs well for the future.

Logan was in good form for the Police in their match against the Yacht Club, but as his win was counter-balanced by a similar loss inflicted on Carey by Bentley, it was left to Marks to provide the deciding factor, and he secured a handsome victory.

The Football Club "A" team were rather unkind to the Electricians in winning so easily but it must be added in fairness to the latter that they did not have a strong team out.

Sheriff's Lucky Break

The Junior champions, the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, had it pretty much their own way against the K.C.C. second team and finished up 32 shots to the good. Sheriff had a flattering win, as he scored a 7 on the last head of the match, when Jack, in trying to sink the kitty, took his only near wood out.

Club de Recreio had a clear-cut win over the Craigengower team and thoroughly deserved their success. F. X. Soares, who is doing so well, had a good win against A.E.S. Alves, finishing nearly 20 shots up, but the other two rinks experienced very close games.

MANY TEAMS AFFECTED IN "D" DIVISION

C. Pile is at present without a partner as G. Carruthers is in hospital, while Smith will be paired with Major, Baker partnering C. Galvin, who makes his first appearance this season, although he played last year. On current form the Chinese should win comfortably.

The Army meet the Indians at Sookumpoo and the latter have made two changes, M. R. Razack being paired with A. K. Minn, while T. Ali partners S. M. Rummah.

The following is to-day's programme:

"D" DIVISION
Radio v Craigengower (Happy Valley)
C.B.A. v K.I.T.C. (King's Park)
S.C.A.A. v Police R.C. (King's Park)
Army T.C. v Indian R.C. (Sookumpoo)

The probable teams are:
C.C.C.—H. N. Cheung and E. Zimmern, A. Kitchell and A. B. Hanson, A. N. Other partner.
S.C.A.A.—F. N. Wong and P. Lai, P. K. Liang and T. K. Tang, C. B. Wong and C. M. Tang.
K.I.T.C.—D. M. Khan and M. A. Khan, Jhan Dad and A. P. Souza, M. Ramzan and M. Singh.
Radio—W. J. Chanson and N. B. Kitchell, M. Sheriff and D. Leonard.

Herbert Marshall stars in "Forgotten Faces," the new melodrama, which is shown at the Queen's Theatre. Blonde Gertrude Michael plays opposite him.

But in the 4th game Tuckey forfeited his service through what appeared to be a bad decision—one of the few I have seen at Auteuil in the past week. Instead 3-1 the score was 2-2; next 3-3 through Borotra winning his service from 15 and Hughes now thoroughly roused serving two aces in the sixth game.

Tuckey's stouthearted service turns were mainly responsible for breaking through Bernard's service. Some fine thrusts at short range, and perfect lobbing when the opportunity was offered, carried the English to 5-3. In the ninth game, with Borotra serving, they had two set balls and it must be confessed that a peaceful backhand drive would have been an invaluable addition to Tuckey's equipment at this vital stage. The French adopted the Australian formation, Bernard standing in the same court as the server. This ruse closed the usual channels for the reply, and so placed an extra premium on Tuckey's left wing.

Great French Bid

Great as never before, the French made the boldest bid for the twelfth and squaring game. They eventually won it after many brilliant rallies, but not before a valuable point. Now the fight for the set came to its climax. Every lucky net cord had given them a stroke counted, and the finish of every rally was cheered; the English often getting a glad hand, which they so rightly deserved.

Backwards and forwards went the eleventh game with Tuckey serving. Each pair had the advantage several times. Borotra, I suppose, must be described as its hero, since it was his superhuman efforts that eventually clinched it. But five more tense games were necessary before the French, again aided by a net cord stroke, finally captured Tuckey's service which gave them the set.

Brief Set

The fourth set was unexpectedly brief. Now an exalted couple, moving forward on the crest of a wave, the French gained an early service break and never looked back. They gave an inspired display of thrustful volleying and sharply pointed ground strokes, Bernard sending with his quiet spin drive past Tuckey's left wing and Borotra crowding the net to kill any ball that bounding feet could reach.

Of the losers there is little to criticise, for they gave of their best in a stern fight, with the match going to their opponents. Perhaps their reserves were not as plentiful as those of the enemy; they had not quite the same resiliency as the French. But in the second set, as when going to 5-3 in the third, they played magnificent tennis.

Subsequently the shock of losing their winning lead seemed to influence Tuckey's play. His service returns were never as crisp afterwards, and in the fourth set he lost his fine firmness overhead. On grass, of course, his power would have been more effective, although the same might be said of Borotra, who in the last two sets gave his genius full reign.

G. Singh and Karmali Singh.
C.B.A.—F. Angus and G. Gurevitch, S. Fowler, M. Yatsin, D. Smith and J. Clendon.
Police—A. N. Other and C. Pile, S. Smith and A. E. Major, A. Baker and E. Galvin.
I.R.C.—M. Hassan and A. M. Rummah, A. K. Minn and M. R. Razack, T. Ali and S. M. Rummah.

TURNBULL'S CLAIMS ADVANCED

For that reason I have always fancied Barnett, of Gloucestershire, a player who does seem to enjoy himself. Barnett was bothered by the experimental l.b.w. rule last summer, but he overcame his worries, and this year I hope he will give us cause to watch him closely.

Lancashire's Claims

There are other players in the Lancashire team who must be in the running for the Australian tour. Washbrook is one and Paynter another, and Duckworth is obviously a strong claimant for the position of wicket-keeper. In Yorkshire, though, they back Wood as wicket-keeper, for last summer Wood had 59 catches and 22 stumpings to his credit, and was fifth in the Yorkshire batting averages with an aggregate of 1,087 runs. I have an idea that Wood will go to Australia.

Hardstaff, of Nottingham, is another young batsman who deserves every encouragement. I watched him making runs last week, and there is in his strokes that suggestion of dominance which is the birthright of the great player. We all know many players who make their hundreds in first-class cricket, and yet will never become more than good, sound batsmen.

What is it that they lack which would carry them the one step forward into greatness? Concentration, you may say, or the remarkable eyesight of a Bradman or a Ranjitsingh, or the extra quickness of foot, or body balance, or a refinement of stroke production.

Bowlers Lazy

Well, it might be one or all of these in very slight degree, but there is something more, something in the player himself, a quality of spirit, or temperament, which differentiates him from his fellows. We know that this quality will turn an otherwise orthodox drive through the covers into a challenge, a declaration of war. We recognise it when we see it, but often, I am afraid, we pass it by.

Gimblett, of Somerset, Barber, of Yorkshire, R. C. M. Kimpton, of Oxford—three more players to watch. Already Gimblett draws the crowd. A strange thing, perhaps, but I am writing only of batsmen. What of the bowlers? An eminent player said to me the other day that in his opinion modern bowlers are lazy. They do not propose to use themselves up by bowling fast. They are not encouraged to do so in their schools and clubs, and we are left searching for another Larwood.

I wonder, incidentally, if we really have any faster bowlers than Larwood to-day, despite the fact that he has had to reduce his pace so much? Larwood is still fast. Ask wicket-keeper Lilly or the slips who have to take catches off Larwood. An interesting point. And how about Gover, who is bowling himself into the limelight with a will? And Copson, who might prove to be the successor to Maurice Tate if his stamina permits? Small wonder, I say, when there is so much to talk about, that cricket this summer holds our attention.

GOOD LEAGUE BOWLS CARD TO-MORROW

The only away win which I am prepared to forecast is on the Civil Service green, where the K.C.C. are the visitors. The best match on the programme is likely to be at Austin Road, where the Kowloon Bowling Green Club entertain Club de Recreio. A really close game should result with the home team having the better of the encounter by a small margin. Tai-koo have an excellent chance of recording their first win when they meet the Indians at home. The ground advantage should prove the turning point and I am sure they will be celebrating on Saturday night.

Intra-Club Affair

The other inter-club game between the Football Club rinks should result in a win for the senior team.

The Yacht Club have an excellent opportunity of securing their first success when they meet Craigengower, and they may just do it. The Electricians who have improved should do a little better than last year when they meet the Police. The K.C.C., who commenced their season so well, will not find the rejuvenated Civil Service team easy to beat, but I imagine they will retain the points.

The real battle in the junior division will be at Club de Recreio, where last year's junior champions will be the visitors; the match may well have a bearing on the destination of the shield as these two teams are fighting for the top of the League at present. The K.B.G.C. are on top only by reason of having played one more match, but I think they will consolidate their position as the result of this match.

C.C.C. PLAYERS PUT UP GREAT FIGHT AT P.R.C.

Way and Gomez scored a five on the 16th head and followed this up with 2, 1, 4 and 2 at the next four heads respectively.

Dallah's Easy Win

On the Craigengower Cricket Club green, A. R. Dallah, of the Indian Recreation Club, beat a clubmate in S. M. Rummah by 24-6, the latter only scoring on five ends.

The full results of yesterday's games were:

Open Singles
A. R. Dallah 24, S. M. Rummah 6 (18 heads) at C.C.C.
Open Pairs
C. Rosa Pereira and C. G. Silva 22, W. K. Way and A. S. Gomez 22, at Police R.C.
F. A. Machado and E. P. Rosario 23, A. Spary and L. Jack 17, at R.D. R.C.

"HAD 99 DRINKS"

Driver Disqualified For 10 Years

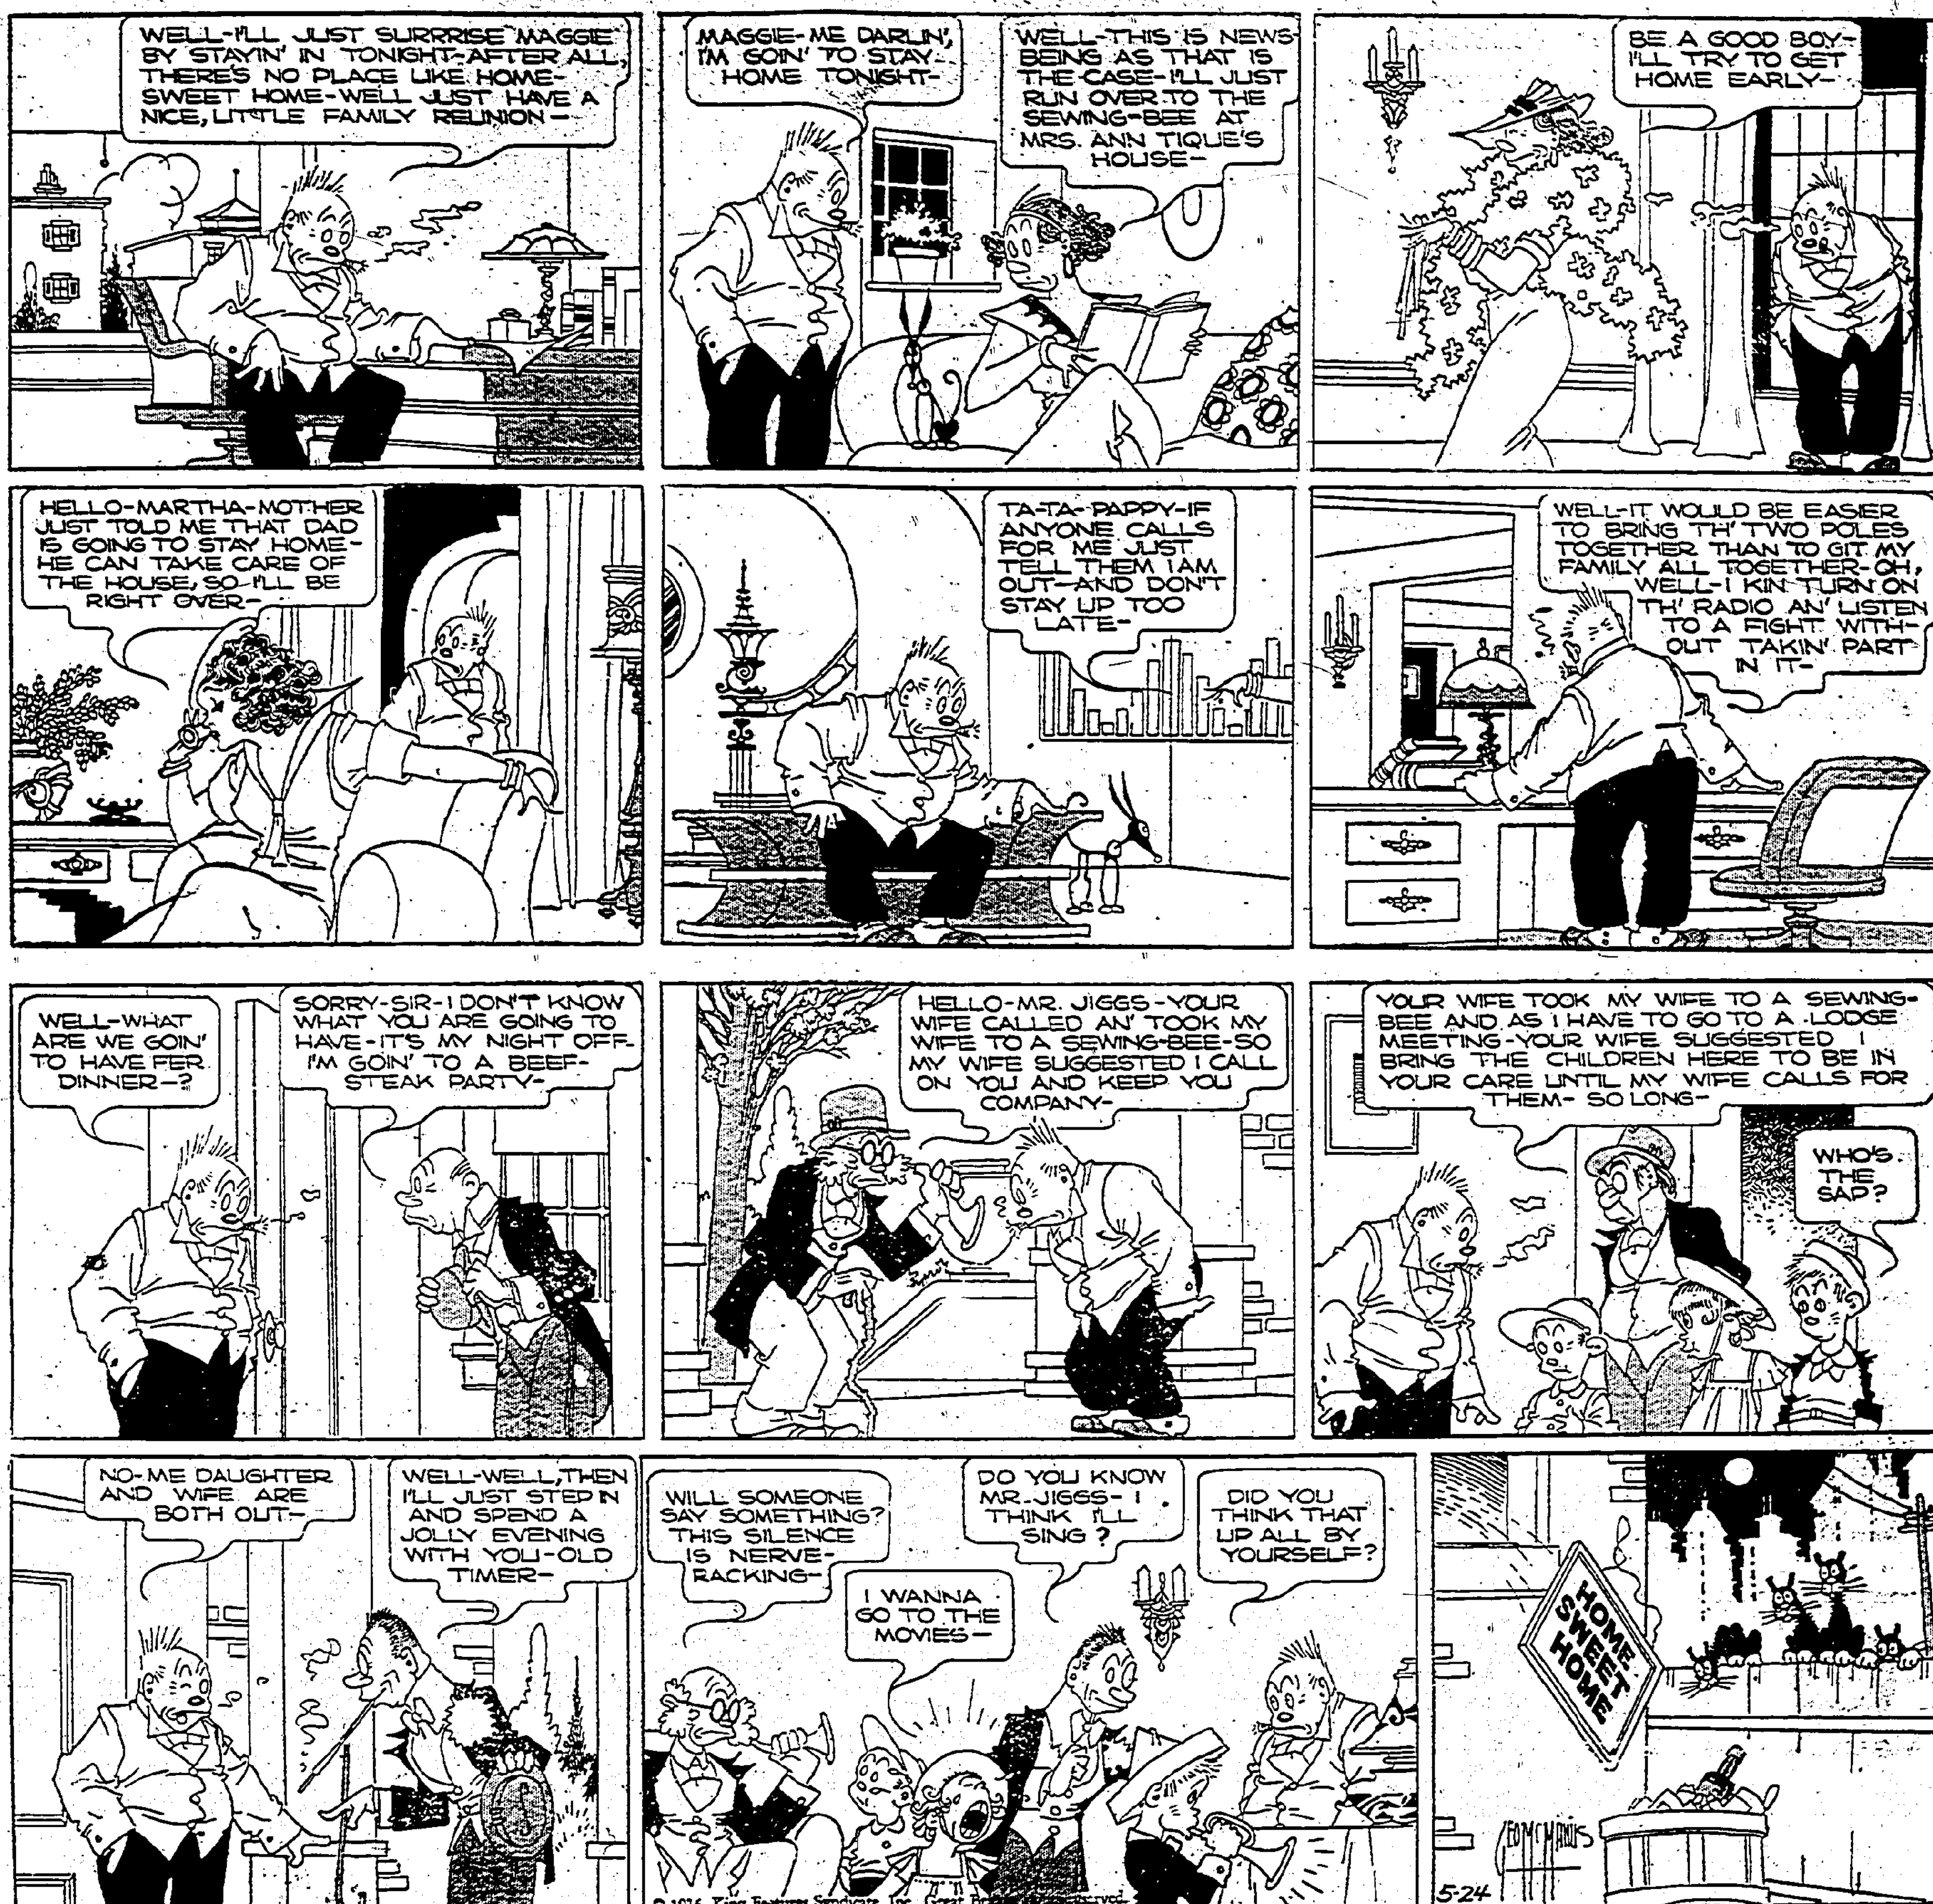

Ernest Gregory, aged 29, a Shoreditch lorry driver, was stated at Old-street police-court last month to have said to a constable: "I have had 99 drinks."

Fining Gregory £25 for driving while under the influence of drink, the magistrate told him that he would be disqualified for 10 years.

The constable stated that he followed Gregory because of his erratic driving. The car turned on to the pavement and almost jammed a woman against a wall.

After learning that Gregory had been convicted for stealing a car, and had committed several motor-ing offences, the magistrate said: "It is perfectly obvious that this man should not be allowed out on the road with anything."

This will be followed by "The Bohemian Girl," with Laurel and Hardy. I have no doubt these two comedians will draw the "houses," even if it be impossible to report well of this M.G.M. release.

The next picture, "Gentleman Are Born," gave the now popular Franchot Tone one of his best screen roles, and also introduced another very promising player in the person of Ross Alexander. Jean Muir, Anne Dvorak and Margaret Lindsay make this poignant drama a picture that can be highly recommended. (Oriental).

Majestic

"The Nine O'Clock Revue"—that charming galaxy of Anglo-American talent headed by Rex Storey and pretty Rose Lee—will be showing in conjunction with pictures on the 18th, 19th and 20th. It is two years since this band of entertainers was here, and in the meantime they have been bringing pleasure to many lonely outposts of the British Empire, including the island of Mauritius, and in most parts of South Africa. In addition to Mr. Storey and Miss Lee, the charming Pat Shannon, the La Rue Sisters, Arline Bancroft, Thelma Tyndall and nimble-footed Fred Collier, will again give their bright little entertainment, which should ensure full houses at the popular Majestic. This will be positively the last opportunity of seeing this company as they have engagements of fulfil in Northern cities.

On the 18th Gloria Swanson, John Boles and Douglass Montgomery are to be seen in "Music In The Air," followed by "Here

CEYLON'S 'THOUSANDS OF UNHAPPY GIRLS' STATE MARRIAGE AGENCY PROPOSED

Kalutara.

The Kalutara Maha Jana Sabha is of opinion that the Ceylonese Government should institute a matrimonial agency so as to make it easier for spinsters to find husbands. The proposal, it is stated, will achieve better results more readily than Dr. A. P. de Zoysa's idea for a ban on dowries.

THIS SCHOOLROOM OF PRINCES

One or two royalties intended to go to school there, but it was thought inadvisable to send them to England. Among them are Crown Prince Michael of Rumania and the Archduchess Charlotte, a sister of the Archduke Otto, who has 21 Christian names. The Archduke nearly went to Oxford himself, but has since taken his doctor's degree at the University of Louvain.

Most of the Kings who have been to school there are still young. They rely for advice on their elder relations, and of these Prince Paul, the Senior Jugo-Slavian Regent, was at Oxford, as was the Emir Zeid of Irak, brother of the late King Feisal, and right-hand man to his nephew, King Ghazi.

Comes Trouble," then "Riff Raff"—giving splendid opportunities to Spencer Tracy and Jean Harlow—which is quite worth seeing. "Broadway Hostess" featuring Winifred Shaw, cabaret singer, in a tale of Broadway night life, and on the 25th a most delightful spy-drama, chock full of exciting situations—"Rendezvous," with Rosalind Russell and William Powell scintillating. Not to be missed. (Majestic)—DIANE.

Mr. C. J. Agulawatte presided at the meeting of the Sabha, when Mr. F. T. Seneviratne moved that the Government should "sponsor a feasible scheme for the promotion of marriages in this country with special regard to provide State aid to girls of marriageable age, placed in circumstances, financial or otherwise, which hinder their entering the married state."

Mr. Seneviratne said that it was common knowledge that a large number of girls, eager and fit for marriage, were condemned to remain spinsters for want of a dowry.

Timely Motion

It was timely, therefore, that the State should intervene, and not only provide facilities for young people to enter into matrimony but even maintain some constructive scheme for affording financial assistance in deserving cases.

Government should act as a Matrimonial Agent for the happiness of thousands of unhappy girls. Mr. D. S. Munasinghe, in seconding the motion, said that although there was already a motion in the State Council to abolish the dowry system it would not be passed. "It was a motion that should never have been placed before the State Council."

Mr. Seneviratne's proposal could be easily worked out. There could be lists in the offices of registrars of marriages, on which bachelors and spinsters might write their requirements, giving particulars of themselves.

The motion was passed unanimously.

VIOLENCE DENIED BY POLICE

Albert Hall Riot Sequel

EVIDENCE BY LADY DORIS GUNSTON

Suggestions of police violence to a young man during a disturbance near the Albert Hall, after a meeting addressed by Sir Oswald Mosley, were made last month at London Sessions.

Duncan Guthrie, aged 24, appealed against conviction and a £10 fine imposed by Mr. Marshall, the Westminster magistrate, for assaulting Police-sergt. Ellwood.

Mr. J. F. Eastwood, for the police, said that during the disturbance a man was taken into custody, and Guthrie turned to the crowd and shouted, "Come on, boys; let's release him."

After a struggle Guthrie broke free and ran about 100 yards. When the police came up to him he shouted that he would kill them, added Mr. Eastwood, and kicked Sgt. Ellwood in the stomach. He was so violent in the police van that his boots had to be removed.

Lady's Evidence

Lady Doris Gunston, of Carrington-place, W., spoke of seeing Guthrie fight with four or five policemen, and escape. She followed and saw another fight. Speaking of Guthrie, she added: "I had never seen anyone fight so hard before."

She did not see the police use their truncheons, and thought they were not trying hard enough to arrest him.

Lady Doris said that she saw handcuffs being waved in this air, but the police were unable to put them on. When the police van came up Guthrie was lying on the pavement. He was "bundled" into the van.

Sgt. Ellwood, cross-examined by Mr. Noel Lindsay, said there was no question of the police losing of the van by his feet and wrists and thrown into the street, and bumped on every step of the police-station.

The sergeant also denied that a policeman knocked Guthrie's head two or three times on the pavement. He did not see truncheons used.

Bruises on Body

Mr. Lindsay: When you saw Guthrie next morning at the police-court, was his forehead bruised right across, both his eyes blacked, and his nose badly bruised?—No.

He was more or less unmarked. "I am not going to say he did not have bruises on his body," added the sergeant.

Sgt. Ellwood also denied that Guthrie was punched, struck with batons or kicked.

It was also denied by the sergeant that the man was taken out of the van by his feet and wrists and thrown into the street, and bumped on every step of the police-station.

CITY THAT LIKES WOMEN

MODERN SHANGHAI EXAMINED

Actually, the mighty and flourishing city of Shanghai shelters, provides livings, nurtures and caters to the needs of an eighth of the human race, writes Phillip Nesbit in an American paper.

We think of our own New York as being the magic, potent and most incredible of cities. Shanghai is the New York of China. There, they have, instead of Fifth Avenue, the "Bund," up and down which throbs a deep river of shining motor cars, trams and buses, really out-pacing both New York and London in the magnitude of the spectacle.

A hundred years ago, this Shanghai was a tiny fishing village, filled with the wrinkled and hardy coastal "piscators" of China, eating fish at every meal, and living in constant fear of the attacks of pirates from across the sea—the "Pirates of Japan."

Unique Position

That which makes the Shanghai of to-day significant is the position it occupies in regard to the land of China. Instead of being north or south, it is bang in the middle of the coastline. Logically placed, it is, for distribution of the productive wealth of Asia, East. Then, it sits at Whangpoo, only 12 miles from the mouth of that famed and marvellous river, the Yangtze Kiang, tasting of the abundance of native trades and shipping. Ten thousand score of heavily laden junks rattle out from Shanghai every year, touching all the far tips of Eastern civilization.

The soil upon which Shanghai

He was more or less unmarked. "I am not going to say he did not have bruises on his body," added the sergeant.

Sgt. Ellwood also denied that Guthrie was punched, struck with batons or kicked.

It was also denied by the sergeant that the man was taken out of the van by his feet and wrists and thrown into the street, and bumped on every step of the police-station.

New Soviet Family Code Under Attack By Women

Moscow.—The "Code of New Family Life," which offers bonuses to women who have eight or more children, is provoking a storm of criticism here, in spite of the long and careful preparation of public opinion in its favour by the official press.

As these criticisms are reported in the newspapers it seems likely that this is to be a proposal which Stalin intends to allow the new "Soviet democracy" to discuss and even to amend.

Typical of the attacks made on the new code by working women are the following:

We think of our own New York as being the magic, potent and most incredible of cities. Shanghai is the New York of China. There, they have, instead of Fifth Avenue, the "Bund," up and down which flows a deep river of shining motor cars, trams and buses, really out-pacing both New York and London in the magnitude of the spectacle.

A hundred years ago, this Shanghai was a tiny fishing village, filled with the wrinkled and hardy coastal "piscators" of China, eating fish at every meal, and living in constant fear of the attacks of pirates from across the sea—the "Pirates of Japan."

Unique Position

That which makes the Shanghai of to-day significant is the position it occupies in regard to the land of China. Instead of being north or south, it is bang in the middle of the coastline. Logically placed, it is, for distribution of the productive wealth of Asia, East. Then, it sits at Whangpoo, only 12 miles from the mouth of that famed and marvellous river, the Yangtze Kiang, tasting of the abundance of native trades and shipping. Ten thousand score of heavily laden junks rattle out from Shanghai every year, touching all the far tips of Eastern civilization.

The soil upon which Shanghai

He was more or less unmarked. "I am not going to say he did not have bruises on his body," added the sergeant.

Sgt. Ellwood also denied that Guthrie was punched, struck with batons or kicked.

It was also denied by the sergeant that the man was taken out of the van by his feet and wrists and thrown into the street, and bumped on every step of the police station.

Sir Gerald Wollaston, Garter Principal King of Arms, gave evidence that he had known Guthrie since he was a small boy. "His parents used to live next door to us," he said, "and he was my children's contemporary and friend. I never knew him to show signs of violent behaviour."

The appeal was adjourned.

has grown and flourished is the best of all China. Rich, in the sense that the Mississippi basin is rich, and like early California, rich yet in the potential mineral wealth to be developed.

Do not think of Shanghai as being a Chinese city. True, the blood corpuscles of the city's basic life are Chinese, yet the bulk of the life is foreign. Many Britishers and Americans—a great many, find life worth living, in and among its immense skyscrapers and teeming offices.

Native Quarter

The native quarter is boundless; narrow streets, bazaars with forests of waving paper pendants, where surging masses of Chinese, Sikhs from India, Hindus and Malays struggle to buy and sell, eat and converse, raise babies, die and be born all at once.

The policemen of Shanghai, even as in America, are selected for their brawn and muscle. Sikhs—big and mighty fighting men from Western India, direct traffic and arrest you if you've imbibed too much at the cafes or bars. Outside of the bobbies of London, these Shanghai policemen are doubtless the most polite—and at the same time, the most firm. They preserve order in a dynamic and potent city, resisting all tides of unrest and upheaval.

In all the time I spent in the Orient, I did not find one woman who had an unhappy stay in Shanghai. Shanghai caters to, regards with high esteem—women! There, he men are many and ready for the gayest of rounds at the drop of the hat.

For Maiden Aunts

Maiden aunts may go to Shanghai, debutants, school teachers, maiden ladies and mothers; and each will find a suitable and ardent man to show them what it is to drink a Singapore sling and turn a lighted eye upon this world of woe. The actual nucleus of modern Shanghai was the "International Settlement," formed with the tying together of the British and American districts in 1863. In customary fashion, the "French" people living in Shanghai keep their distance, a little suspicious of both the Britishers and the Americans.

They have a nicely named street in Shanghai—old and famous Nan-king Road, leading off to the west from the Bund, now called "Bubbling Well Road." What could be a better name for a road leading West—"Bubbling Well Road!"

In the country affected by the interest of Shanghai—all the persons with a penny in the purse speak of the sweepstakes—and with the same anticipation of a ticket buying Bronx tailor, may expect to win, perhaps as much as $200,000 in Mex.

Shanghai offers a different phase of Chinese life to that of Peiping. To the north lies the China of ancient times—while Shanghai, in the coastline centre, is all that is modern.

STRIKE IN BELGIUM

CONFLICTING REPORTS
20,000 IDLE IN BRUSSELS

Armoured Cars Still Patrol Liege Streets

Brussels, To-day.
The strike is generally spreading and now extends to Brussels, where it is stated that 20,000 are idle. The total number of strikers in Belgium is now estimated at nearly 400,000.

Minor incidents continue to be reported, but the tension at the main strike centres has relaxed. The strikers apparently assume that the Government is making a genuine effort to find a solution quickly. — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

ARMOUR-CAR PATROLS

Brussels: The tension in the labour conflict has increased rather than diminished since the workers declare that the concessions made to them by the Government and representatives of the employers, in the agreement between representatives of the employers organisations, are utterly insufficient.

As it is feared that the aggravation of situation may lead to further serious incidents, the Government has taken extensive precautionary measures. Thus in Liege armoured-cars are constantly patrolling the streets. The total number of strikers in Belgium is now roughly 279,000 and the Brussels district is now likewise affected. In the suburbs of Ukkel and Vorst several factories have been occupied by strikers. One of Brussels' largest shoe-factories has been closed by 40 owners. — Trans-Ocean Service.

EVILS OF OPIUM

MONOPOLIES IN FAR EAST

Abolition Favoured At Geneva

CHINESE GOVERNMENT CAMPAIGN AIDED

Geneva, To-day.

The International Labour Office conference decided to press on with the campaign for the prevention of opium smoking by workers in the Far East. M. Johaux, the French workers' delegate, proposed a resolution which was unanimously carried, urging the abolition of all opium monopolies in the Far East.

He added that certain Powers which might be described as expanding Powers in the East should be invited to see that their expansion was not dishonoured by the fact that nationals enjoying extra-territorial rights were in a position to sell opium to Chinese workers.

Mr. Li Ping-cheng, the Chinese delegate, revealed the disastrous effect for China caused by widespread opium smoking amongst workers, which reduced their productive capacity by an average of 50 per cent. The Chinese Government would be greatly helped in its campaign against the evils of opium by the adoption of the conference's resolution. — Reuter.

MAXIM GORKI PASSES

FAMOUS RUSSIAN WRITER

"CHINA MAIL" SPECIAL

Moscow, To-day.
Maxim Gorki, the best-known Russian author of modern days, has died here after a prolonged illness, aged 68. Gorki, whose real name is Alexey Maximovich Peshnev, was the son of an upholsterer and spent his early life in extreme poverty. His writings, such as the play "Lower Depths," were inspired by experiences encountered in the author's youth.

Gorki's revolutionary activities forced him to leave Russia, and he settled down in Capri. At that time he began his friendship with Lenin. Nevertheless, for many years after the accession of the Bolshevik regime he remained in disfavour with it, and only a few years ago made his peace with the leaders and returned to Russia, where he was highly honoured. — Trans-Ocean Service.

WEATHER REPORT

collective security in anything approaching that form does not yet exist.

Dealing with the general European situation the Prime Minister said that he regarded it as most important that Germany, France and Britain should work for the peace of Europe side by side. They were hoping to bring the French and Germans themselves into a conference for the better security for the peace of Europe. The view represented by Mr. Eden commanded the unanimous support of the Government. "It is not necessarily a mark of cowardice to take action we know to be repugnant to large sections of our people. In the present stage of Europe we are convinced that it is the wiser of two courses and the one most conducive to peace."

Major C. R. Attlee (Lab., Limehouse) expressed strong dissatisfaction at Mr. Baldwin's speech and announced that he would move a vote of censure on Tuesday next, when the debate is resumed.

"The Great Betrayal"

GOVT. FORFEITED CONFIDENCE OF THE HOUSE

The House of Commons' Opposition vote of censure to be moved by Major Attlee on Tuesday declares that the Government, by lack of a resolute and straightforward foreign policy, have lowered the prestige of Britain, weakened the League of Nations, and imperilled peace, and have therefore forfeited the confidence of the House.

The Parliamentary Labour Party has issued a manifesto to the nation headed "The Great Betrayal," which declares that the League, to which Britain in honour and by deep conviction is pledged, is now in grave danger. It asserts that the Government is
